Overview

Compatible with your device

Reduce annoying 404 pages by automatically checking for an archived copy in the Wayback Machine.

The official Chrome extension of the Wayback Machine from the Internet Archive.

Detects dead pages, 404s, DNS failures and other Web breakdowns (HTTP error codes 408, 410, 451, 500, 502, 503, 504, 509, 520, 521, 523, 524, 525, and 526)

If we have a Wayback Machine archive of a URL that returns those error codes we will offer it to you.

In addition you can view a site map of Web sites based on archives of URLs from those sites archived in the Wayback Machine.

Saturday Night Live

Saturday Night Live (also known simply as SNL) is an American late-night live television sketch comedy and variety show created by Lorne Michaels and developed by Dick Ebersol. The show premiered on NBC on October 11, 1975, under the original title NBC's Saturday Night. The show's comedy sketches, which often parody contemporary culture and politics, are performed by a large and varying cast of repertory and newer cast members. Each episode is hosted by a celebrity guest, who usually delivers the opening monologue and performs in sketches with the cast as with featured performances by a musical guest. An episode normally begins with a cold open sketch that ends with someone breaking character and proclaiming, "Live from New York, it's Saturday Night!", properly beginning the show.

Understanding 9/11 A Television News Archive

About	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday
The Collection	September 11	September 12	September 13

The events of September 11th, 2001 affected the entire world.

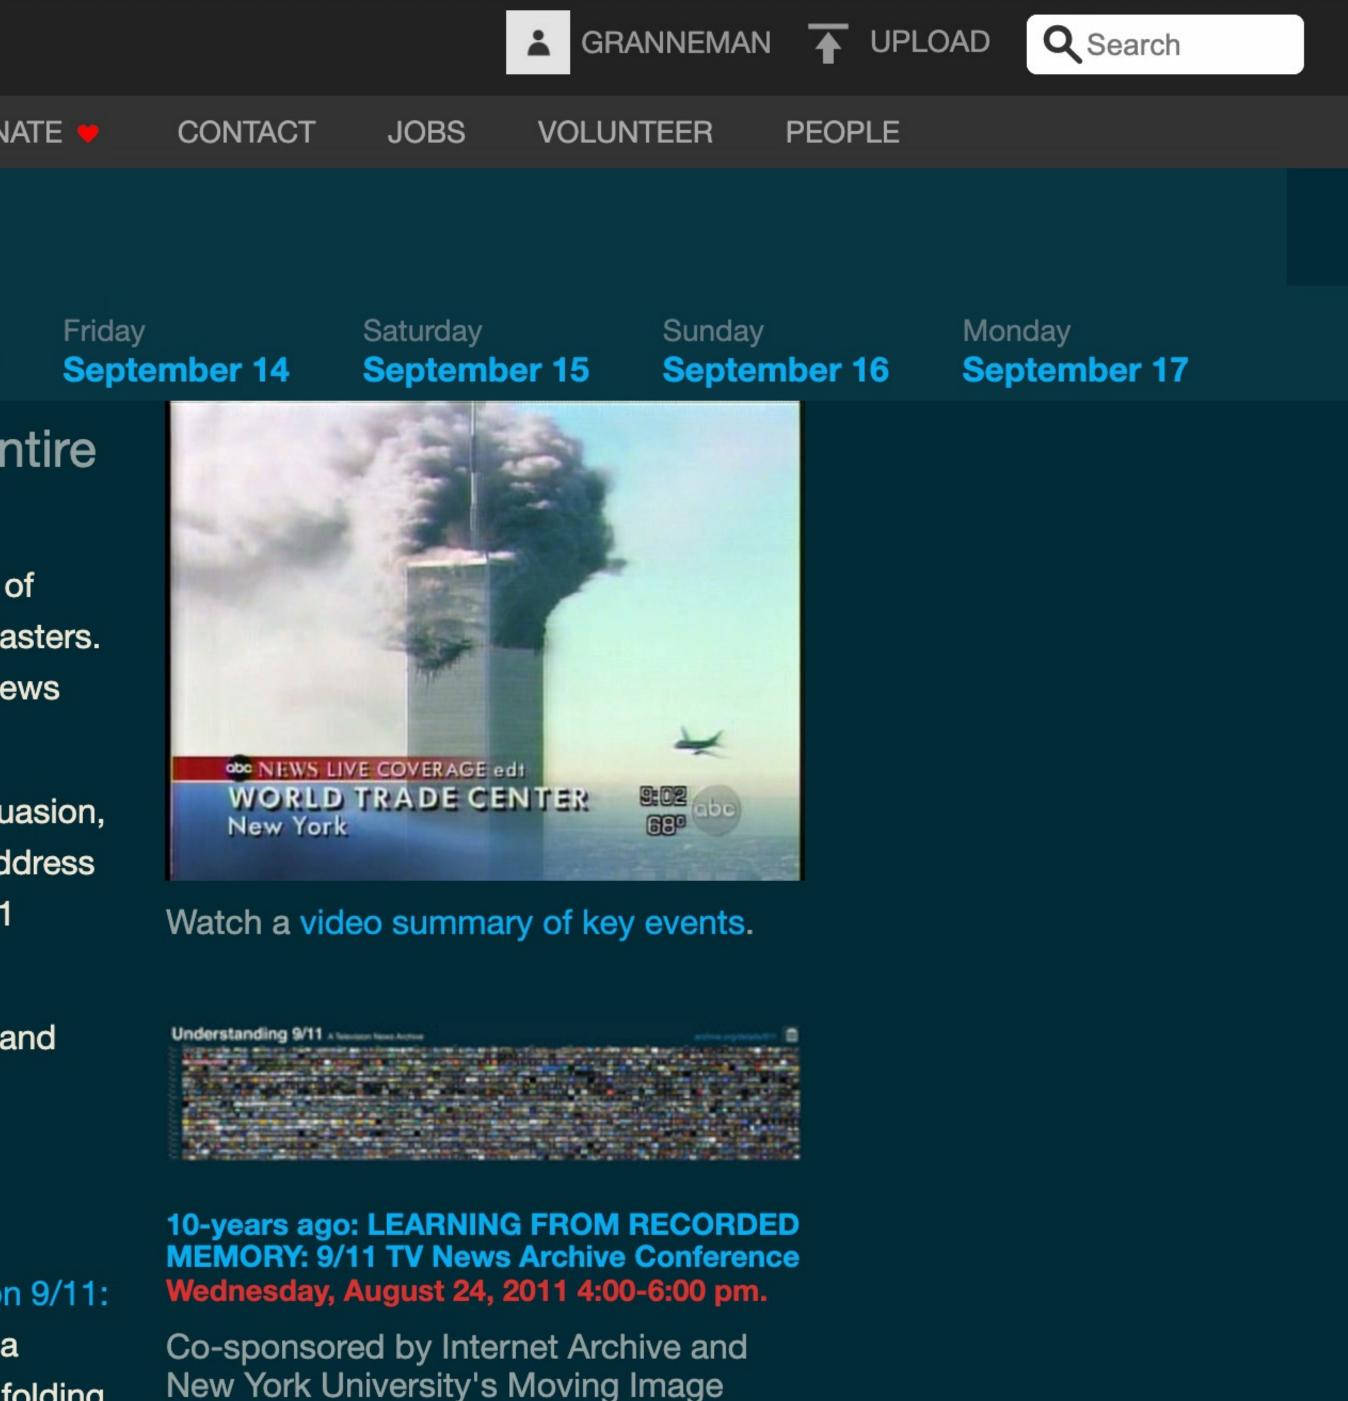

The 9/11 Television News Archive is a library of news coverage of the events of 9/11/2001 and their aftermath as presented by U.S. and international broadcasters. A resource for scholars, journalists, and the public, it presents one week of news broadcasts for study, research and analysis.

Television is our pre-eminent medium of information, entertainment and persuasion, but until now it has not been a medium of record. This Archive attempts to address this gap by making TV news coverage of this critical week in September 2001 available to those studying these events and their treatment in the media.

Explore 3,000 hours of international TV News from 20 channels over 7 days, and select analysis by scholars.

Throughout the 20th century, one of the dominant forms of mass media and entertainment was Radio Shows: Drama, Comedy, Mystery and Horror, as well as news and information, all presented in a purely audio format. Contained in these archives are thousands of hours recorded from these well-funded and talent-filled works.

Some items are entire collections within themselves of many-episode runs of famous shows. Many date from the "Golden Age" of Radio, the early half of the 20th century, while some are remixes or recreations of these works for modern audiences. A percentage are modern(ish) productions utilizing the best of what improved technology and hopes to capture the radio magic could offer.

The introduction of television is considered to be the death knell of this medium, but the works live on.

Hip Hop Mixtapes

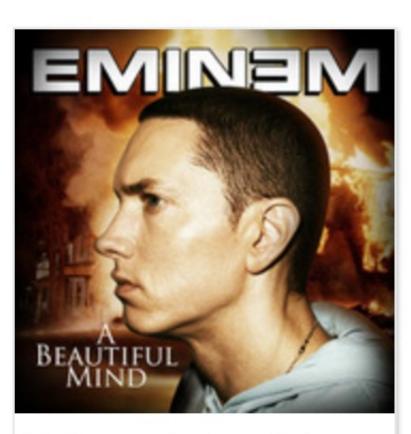

In hip hop's earliest days, the music only existed in live form, and the music was spread via tapes of parties and shows. Hip hop mixtapes first appeared in the mid-1970s in New York City, featuring artists such as Kool Herc and Afrika Bambaataa. As more tapes became available, they began to be collected and traded by fans. In the late 70's into the early 80's DJs began recording mixtapes out of their homes, referring to them as House Tapes. DJs such as Harold G. (who later became known as Whiz ...

Magazine Art: Advertising Art in Magazines

Famous artists, when they weren't painting the covers for the magazines, paid their bills by doing art for advertisers. Some of the things they did can stand up with the best of their covers, and much of it is fascinating today for what it tells us about life and popular culture of the past. This is a small door that opens up into a very large cathedral of art.

Part of The Big Four

Adventure, 1 July 1948

From "A Claymore for the Clan":

"Twas bitter weather and the wind had daggers in it. A bra night for the Macdonalds of Sleat to make a silent crossing of the Sound for a bloody raid on Craigellachie. Young Callum Mor shivered as he hunkered in the shadow of the parapet and imagined their wild cry: Bas! Bas! To Uisdein! Then, suddenly, the skirling of the Pibroch of Dhromhnuill Dhufighting music of Donald the Black of Sleat—rang clear above the wind-moan."

From "The Witched Well" by Everett M. Weber:

"Andy Jackson was about to get his fool self killed in a duel unless Reverent Daniel Davis intervened and kept his last promise to the Lord. Dan'l didn't mind staying away from cockfights, or the corn-liquor jug on Saturday nights—but taking a wife to have underfoot for the rest of his life seemed like an awful big service to do, even for a friend like Old Hickory."

From "The Devil's Left Tusk" by Robinson MacLean:

of nafs. Or, in plain American—bloodshed!"

"All the world knew Matt Murphy's broadcast—From Here On Out. But now that famous voice was stilled forever. And as I stood in the rainswept Gullaly Cemetery in Addis Ababa to tell Matt goodbye for the last time, I knew there was a job that had to be done. A job for Malcolm Murphy—Matt's brother me! Somewhere in that godforsaken Land of the Conquering Lion of Judah I had to find the answer to the riddle of Matt's death. And the only clue I had to go on was the casual remark of that cryptic Ethiopian, Ato Gubru David—'It's all a matter

Astounding Stories Magazine

Analog Science Fiction and Fact is an American science fiction magazine. As of 2013, it is the longest running continuously published magazine of that genre. Initially published in 1930 in the United States as Astounding Stories as a pulp magazine, it has undergone several name changes, primarily to Astounding Science-Fiction in 1938, and Analog Science Fact & Fiction in 1960. In November 1992, its logo changed to use the term "Fiction and Fact" rather than "Fact & Fiction". It is in the library... More...

The sciences, each straining in its own direction, have hitherto harmed us little; but some day the piecing together of dissociated knowledge will open up such terrifying vistas of reality, and of our frightful position therein, that we shall either go mad from the revelation or flee from the deadly light into the peace and safety of a new dark age.

Theosophists have guessed at the awesome grandeur of the cosmic cycle wherein our world and human race form transient incidents. They have hinted at strange survivals in terms which would freeze the blood if not masked by a bland optimism.

But it is not from them that there came the single glimpse of forbidden cons which chills me when I think of it and maddens me when I dream of it. That glimpse, like all dread glimpses of truth, flashed out from an accidental piecing together of separated things-in this case an old newspaper item and the notes of a dead professor. I hope that no one else will accomplish this piecing out; certainly, if I live, I shall never knowingly supply a link in so hideous a chain. I think that the professor, too, intended to keep silent regarding the part he knew, and that he would have destroyed his notes had not sudden death seized him.

My knowledge of the thing began in the winter of 1926-27 with the death of my grand-uncle, George Gammell Angell, Professor Emeritus of Semitic languages in Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island. Professor Angell was widely known es an authority on ancient inscriptions, and had frequently been resorted to by the heads of prominent museums; so that his passing at the nge of ninety-two may be recalled by many. Locally, interest was intensified by the obscurity of the cause of death. The professor had been stricken whilst returning from the Newport boat; falling suddenly, as witnesses said, after having been jostled by a nautical-looking negro who had come from one of the queer dark courts on the precipitous billside which formed a short cut from the waterfront to the deceased's home in Williams Street. Physicians were unable to find any visible dis-order, but concluded after perplexed debate that some obscure lesion of the heart, induced by the brisk ascent of so steep a hill by so elderly a man, was responsible for the end. At the time I saw no reason to dissent from this dictum, but latterly I am inclined to wonder-and more than wonder.

As my granduncle's heir and executor, for he died a childless widower, I was expected to go over his papers with some thoroughness; and for that purpose moved his entire set of files and boxes to my quarters in Boston. Much of the material which I correlated will be later published by the American Archeological Society, but there was one box which I found exceedingly puzzling, and which I felt much averse from showing to other eyes. It had been locked, and I did not find the key till it occurred to me to examine the personal ring which the professor carried always in his pocket. Then, indeed, I succeeded in opening it, but when I did so seemed only to be confronted by a greater and more closely locked barrier. For what could be the meaning of the queer elay bas-relief and the disjointed jottings, ramblings, and euttings which I found f Had my uncle, in his latter years, become credulous of the most superficial impostures? I resolved to search out the eccentric sculptor responsible for this apparent disturbance of an old man's peace of mind

The bas-relief was a rough rectangle less than an inch thick and about five by six inches in area; obviously of modern origin. Its designs, however, were far from modern in atmosphere and suggestion; for, although the vagaries of cubism and futurism are many and wild, they do not often reproduce that cryptic regularity which lurks in prehistoric writing. And writing of some kind the bulk of these designs seemed certainly to be; though my memory, despite much familiarity with the papers and collections of my uncle, failed in any way to identify this particular species, or even hint at its remotest affiliations.

Above these apparent hieroglyphics was a figure of evidently pictorial intent, though its impressionistie execution forbade a very clear idea

Vampirella Magazine (Warren Publishing)

Vampirella is a fictional character, a comic book vampire superheroine created by Forrest J Ackerman and costume designer Trina Robbins in Warren Publishing's black-and-white horror comics magazine Vampirella #1 (Sept. 1969). Writer-editor Archie Goodwin later developed the character from horror-story hostess, in which capacity she remained through issue #8 (Nov. 1970), to a horrordrama leading character. Vampirella was ranked 35th in Comics Buyer's Guide's "100 Sexiest Women in Comics" list.

A Message from Internet Archive Founder, Brewster Kahle

Dear Granneman,

This year is a monumental year for the Internet Archive—our 25th Anniversary. Now more than ever before, we need your help to continue collecting, preserving, and sharing our digital cultural artifacts. We currently have a 2-to-1 Matching Gift Campaign which will maximize your support of this valuable resource.

Thanks to the generosity of our patrons, we've grown from a small preservation project into a vast library that serves millions of people each year. Our work has impacted the lives of so many of our users who value free and open access to information.

From the beginning, it was important for the Internet Archive to be a nonprofit, because it was working for the people. Its motives had to be transparent; it had to last a long time. That's data, or run ads, even while we offer free resources to citizens everywhere like you to pay for servers, staff, and preservation projects.

Over the next 25 years, we'll face a very different set of challenges. We may not have achieved Universal Access to All Knowledge yet, but we still can. Over the next few decades, we can preserve writings from not a hundred million people, but from a billion people. We can have platforms and systems that are driven by altruism, not advertising

Spread the word!

Thank you!
